WELCOME REMARKS

There are very few occasions that give me goosebumps and elicit the same excitement within me that I felt when I commenced my judicial career. The South African Judiciary has been itching for the opportunity to contribute to the International Organisation for Judicial Training (the IOJT) in a materially meaningful manner. Thus, it is a great honour for the South African Judiciary to host the 9th IOJT conference. This conference is not just significant for us in South Africa, but it is monumental for the continent of Africa as this will be the first time ever that the IOJT Conference will be held on African soil and under the African sun.

It gives us tremendous pleasure to welcome and host you all at our beautiful city of Cape Town. We are quite confident that you will have an engaging, stimulating and inspiring program and that you will enjoy the warmth and hospitality that Cape Town is renowned for.

The Conference is a flagship program of the IOTJ, which represents the largest gathering of judicial education training institutes in the world with the primary objective of discussing the latest developments in the judicial education field.

I look forward to welcoming all of you in Cape Town this September.

Justice Sisi Khampepe
Constitutional Court of South Africa

On behalf of the International Organization for Judicial Training (IOJT), it is my pleasure to welcome you as a participant at the 9th International Conference. This will mark our first-ever meeting in Africa, and our gracious hosts in South Africa have arranged for us to gather at the spectacular Cape Town International Convention Centre. The conference will feature dozens of educational sessions and opportunities for all participants to exchange ideas, discuss common problems, and share proven solutions.

The IOJT was established in 2002 to promote the rule of law by considering common issues for the training and education of judges, promoting and advancing cooperation among judicial training institutes, and facilitating the international exchange of information. Our membership has continued to grow and expand, signaling the shared interest globally in the critical mission of our organization.

Thank you for joining us at the 2019 IOJT Conference. I look forward to speaking with you in Cape Town.

Hon. Eliezer Rivlin
President
IOJT

General Information

The 9th IOJT Conference will be held on September 22-26, 2019, at the Cape Town International Convention Centre (CTICC), in Cape Town, South Africa. The convention center is located at Convention Square, 1 Lower Long Street, Cape Town 8001, South Africa.

The conference will be held in three meeting rooms, all of which are on Level 1 of the CTICC(1) building: Ballroom East, Meeting Room 1:41-42 and Meeting Room 1:43-44. English is the official language of the conference, with simultaneous interpretation between English, French, Portuguese and Spanish for all sessions held in Ballroom East. Free wireless internet will be available in the convention center.

The official currency of the conference is the United States Dollar. The local currency in South Africa is the South African Rand. The average daytime high temperature in Cape Town in late September is 20 degrees Celsius (68 degrees Fahrenheit).

More information about the conference is on the website at iojt.org/2019conference.

Conference Policies

- All participants and accompanying persons must wear their name badge at all times throughout the conference for access to all educational programs, meals and social events. If a name badge is lost or misplaced during the conference, a replacement fee may be charged.
- Please silence cell phones and other electronic devices so as not to disturb others.
- During the conference sessions, all questions asked in the plenary room should be made through microphones provided, to facilitate simultaneous interpretation.
- Business attire is appropriate throughout the conference, except where otherwise noted in this program.

JUDGE VARDA WIRTH LIVNE

Judge Varda Wirth Livne studied in Tel Aviv Law School. She worked as a legal adviser in the private sector, in a public company and in the Israel's major workers' union. In 1989, she was nominated as a judge in the Tel Aviv Regional Labor Court, then President of the court and later nominated as a judge in Israel's National Labor Court. She headed Chairman of the Judges' Committee in Israel from 2012 to 2018. Additionally, she taught courses in a number of universities about equality and labor law. In 2018, she became President of the National Labor Court, the position she holds today. Throughout the duration of Judge Varda Wirth Livne's service on the National Labor Court, she ruled on a number of landmark decisions impacting Israeli labor law. In 2008, she ruled that sexual relations between a supervisor and their subordinate, as a result of exploitation of their position of power, constitutes as grounds for a sexual harassment lawsuit. In 2008, she ruled that during the "protected period" following maternity leave (where an employer is prohibited from firing employees returning from leave), the employer is also prohibited from paying the employee as a substitute for allowing her to return to work, as it denies the employees a chance to integrate back into the workplace. In 2011, Judge Varda Wirth Livne ruled that workers may file a class action lawsuit against a company to receive the sums that the company had not set aside for employee's provident fund, and that in places with a collective agreement class action lawsuits may be filed when the workers' union isn't acting to fully enforce worker's rights in that sector. In 2018, she ruled that employees have full liberty to choose which type of pension plan they prefer without interference from their employer.
